Marquet International Announces Pro-Bono Program
Tracking Down Deadbeat Parents

Boston – November 13, 2007 – Marquet International Ltd. announced today that it had initiated a pro-bono program whereby it would provide research and investigative support in an effort to track down some of the worst child support scofflaws. The firm will work primarily on behalf of the respective Child Support and Enforcement Divisions of Northeastern states where the company is based.

“We are pleased to be able to give something back to the community by helping track down some of these deadbeat parents,” said Christopher T. Marquet, CEO of Marquet International. “It’s bad enough that many of these individuals have abandoned their children, but by not fulfilling their financial obligations places a terrible hardship on those families.”

Marquet International recently provided the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Child Support Enforcement Division with concrete leads on the current whereabouts of three of that state’s “10 Most Wanted” deadbeat parents. They also provided information to the State of New Hampshire, Division of Child Support Services on two of their “10 Most Wanted” child support scofflaws. “We are regularly called upon to track down and vet witnesses and other parties to litigation by our law firm clients and we can apply these skills to support our community,” said Marquet.

Marquet International expects to provide investigative support on a regular basis and work with state officials to help in their collection efforts.
